CINEMA NOTES

This month at Triskel Christchurch - which happens to be the second anniversary since the opening of its cinema - we present the finest in world cinema. From the light-hearted, thought-provoking and downright beautiful, there is a wide spectrum of films to cater for every taste.

We are delighted to be screening I'm So Excited, the latest film from acclaimed Spanish director Pedro Almodóvar, which The List describes as "a camp, frothy piece of fun...hilarious". It is a return to the OTT comedies that Almodóvar made at the beginning of his career and is a lot of fun. From France we have In The House starring Kristen Scott Thomas and the new picture from the director of La Haine, entitled Rebellion. There is also the Brazilian drama Neighbouring Sounds, Harmony Korines's nihilistic Spring Breakers, and Me And You from Italian filmmaker Bernardo Bertolucci (Last Tango In Paris, The Last Emperor). We also have the wonderful classic Singin' In The Rain and a special screening Baraka, digitally remastered for maximum visual effect. The End Of The Earth Is My Home, from Irish director Alan Lambert, is an experimental and visually-enthralling picture which is presented by Black Sun Cinema.

I'M SO EXCITED ¹⁶

89 mins - Spain 2013 - Subtitles - Dir: Pedro Almodóvar
Starring: Javier Cámara, Pepa Charro and Cecilia Roth

The latest picture from the creator of All About My Mother, Talk To Her and Volver is a return to the high-camp comedy stylings of his early work. A very mixed group of travellers are in a life-threatening situation on board a plane flying to Mexico City.

Their defencelessness in the face of danger provokes a general catharsis that ends up becoming the best way to escape from the idea of death. This catharsis, developed in the tone of a riotous, moral comedy, fills the time with unforeseeable confessions that help them forget the anguish of the moment and face the greatest of dangers, that which they each carry within themselves.

"A bright, breezy and frothy aircraft-set comedy...camp, kitsch and deliciously entertaining" Screen Daily
